++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
A cold night with some snow tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Remaining dry through the evening and overnight with long clear spells, though a few wintry showers remain possible in the northwest. Very cold temperatures introduce a risk of freezing fog patches, and potentially icy conditions. Light winds throughout. Minimum temperature -6 deg C (21 deg F).

Thursday:
A frosty, bright start, with any freezing fog being slow to clear. Wintry showers are likely to affect northern and western coastal areas. Turning cloudy later with wintry showers overnight. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Outbreaks of rain, snow, and sleet on Friday. Drier on Saturday. Cold across these days with sunny spells, and overnight frosts. Cloudy and milder on Sunday, with some patchy rain.
